

Sophie Staughton is a social worker and private practice owner of Veritable, based in Mparntwe (Alice Springs) and also operating in Darwin. She is passionate about providing high quality social work services for the community that are appropriately adapted to the NT remote context, culturally safe and competent, and build resilient and skilled practitioners. Sophie is interested in assisting the NT Branch of the AASW to support social workers in their remote practice contexts including to advocate for improved services and social justice. She is also keen to improve equity and reduce disadvantage for overseas-born social workers who work in regional and remote Australia.
